Description

Refined and unique pair of bronze vases, created using the lost-wax casting technique and featuring a fine gilt finish. Designed after ancient oil lamps, the vases rest on elegant, square-shaped bases made of French red marble. They take the form of an amphora, with handles sculpted as coiled serpents that wrap around the rim. The bodies of the vases depict classical scenes, separated by male caryatids, showing figures performing libations at an altar and carrying food, accompanied by musicians. This pair exudes great elegance and sophistication, lending a touch of class and an air of antiquity to any setting. French manufacture, in
