Description

18th-century Genoese domestic pray god made of painted and polychrome wood, with Rocaille-style decoration.It features an upper section with a sloped top, surmounting a small cabinet that opens with two doors, and a projecting lower section forming a kneeler. The piece is adorned with a rich painted decoration of Rocaille cartouches featuring turquoise-blue volutes, embellished with floral bouquets, foliage, and garlands delicately rendered on an ivory-white background. Characteristic of 18th-century Genoese decorative taste, this pray god exemplifies the elegance and whimsy of Italian painted furniture from this period. The polychrome finish features a beautiful antique patina, with wear and chips revealing the wood in places, adding to the piece's charm.
