Description

Hereke carpet in natural silk and gold thread -- Circa 1980 95 × 60 cm -- 12,000 knots per dm² An exquisite Hereke rug, made around 1980, in natural silk on a gold-thread background. Its knot density of 12,000 knots per dm² results in a remarkably fine design. The composition centers on a multi-lobed central medallion in shades of powder pink and ivory, featuring a delicate turquoise rosette. Surrounding it is a lavish design of blooming flowers, palmettes, and serrated foliage, connected by delicate scrollwork. The gold-thread background illuminates this composition and highlights a subtle palette of antique pink, coral red, turquoise blue, and soft green. Deep brown outlines emphasize the details of the design. A wide pink border, adorned with flowers and foliage and accented by delicate
