Description

A beautiful and practical promotional item for restaurants from the Moët & Chandon brand, capable of holding three bottles of champagne, sparkling wine, or white wine. An additional removable insert (see photos) allowed two bottles to be displayed at a slight angle, revealing the label of the chilled wine. Yet another beautiful table piece featuring the Moët & Chandon coat of arms engraved on it and a frieze of grapes in high relief. Once again, this is a high-quality, heavy piece that would have adorned the tables or buffets of grand hotels or luxury bars during the Belle Époque in the spa towns. The mark on the base of this wine cooler belonged to a company that specialized in tableware and no longer exists today. Given its weight, the price is ex-Vichy.
