Description

An elegant Louis XV table made of blackened walnut.The tabletop is cabaret-style and opens to reveal a drawer at the front (rear).The crossbars are beautifully molded, with the molding extending down the legs, which end in a snail-shaped decoration.Apart from the rear drawer, which had certainly been lost, there are no restorations.Either our table was originally lacquered black, or it was lacquered black after the death of King Louis XVI as a sign of mourning.High-quality 18th-century craftsmanship.
