Description

An interesting naval box, presumably dating from the second half of the 19th century, made of wood and featuring a distinctive and highly appealing decorative design.The exterior surfaces feature a refined engraved geometric decoration, composed of thin parallel, straight, and wavy lines arranged to form rhombuses and triangular patterns. This original craftsmanship creates a striking effect of depth and chiaroscuro.The box has an interior divided into several compartments, one of which has a lid, and retains metal elements and side handles.Of particular interest are the two lower holes intended for fastening, a feature consistent with its use aboard a boat, where the box could be secured to prevent it from shifting during navigation.It bears natural signs of age and use, which attest to its antiquity and enhance its
