Description

Jean Bailly is a French painter born in 1940 in Algiers, primarily associated with the movements of fantastic realism and figurative surrealism. Originally a physiotherapist, he chose to devote himself entirely to his art. He has developed a unique, poetic and dreamlike body of work. Close in spirit to Lewis Carroll, his pictorial world features imaginary characters navigating unusual situations dictated by dreams. Jean Bailly's great talent lies in his technical mastery (primarily in oils or acrylics), creating a striking contrast: imaginary objects, animals and figures are painted with such attention to detail and such realism that they ultimately appear familiar and tangible to the viewer. His compositions are meticulously crafted, featuring numerous reimagined still lifes and a subtle exploration of
