Description

A cabinet known as the "Bargueno," made of richly carved walnut, featuring a drop-down panel that reveals an elaborate decoration of arcades and small bone columns against a gold background, the drawer handles, shaped like scallop shells, seem to reveal secrets, all resting on an H-shaped base with four tapered, fluted columns at the corners. Spain, 17th century Dimensions (total): 141 x 100 x 40 cm. Price: EUR 7,500 History: The "Bargueno," also known as "Vargueno," takes part of its name from the town of Varga near Toledo, which was one of the largest centers of production for this type of cabinet.
