Description

An elegant vase made by Giustiniani, dating from the late 18th century to the early decades of the 19th century, crafted from glazed earthenware and embellished with a refined decoration in shades of cobalt blue on a white background. The piece is distinguished by its sophisticated baluster shape, featuring a slender neck, an elegantly contoured body, and a stemmed foot resting on a quadrangular base. The surface is enlivened by dense, geometric, and stylized ornamentation, arranged in decorative bands that harmoniously emphasize the piece's proportions. Of particular note are the figurative side handles, modeled in the likeness of fantastical creatures, which lend the piece a sculptural character and remarkable expressive power. The presence of the Giustiniani signature links this piece to the renowned
