Description

This Baroque drop-front cabinet in walnut and walnut burl, from Verona and dating to the late 17th century, is a refined example of the craftsmanship of the era. The piece features a curved front with three drawers that open with an elegant crossbow mechanism, topped by a curved flap door. On the sides, the side panels house two small drawers that add both functionality and style. The interior of the cabinet consists of six drawers and a secret compartment beneath the top, ideal for storing valuable items. The cantilevered legs provide stability, while the burnished metal handles, knobs, and vents complete the piece's aesthetic. The interior is crafted from fir, ensuring sturdiness and durability. This piece is an authentic example of Italian Baroque design, perfect for enhancing
