Description

A wrought-iron and glass table featuring an elliptical, beveled glass top that lends it elegance and a sense of visual lightness. The solid wrought-iron frame consists of four legs with sinuous, curling lines, joined at the center by a ring that ensures stability and harmony in the overall design. This combination of materials and forms reflects late 20th-century Italian craftsmanship, offering a piece of furniture that blends seamlessly into various stylistic contexts, from classic to contemporary. The choice of beveled glass adds a touch of sophistication, while the wrought iron emphasizes the piece's sturdiness and durability.Product condition:This piece of furniture requires restoration and repolishing due to its age and wear and tear. We strive to present the actual condition of the piece
