Description

A decorative bamboo coat rack dating from the late 19th century, likely made around 1890.This tall, open structure is composed of bamboo poles fitted with various curved hooks for hanging coats and hats. In the center is a square mirror, positioned diagonally between the intersecting bamboo poles.The lower section features an open shelf for umbrellas and canes, with a drip tray underneath. The bamboo has a dark reddish-brown finish with visible signs of aging.A characteristic example of the influence of Japonism on European furniture design in the late 19th century.Dimensions: 193H x 68L x 30P
