Description

Rectangular coffee table from the 1970s, featuring a black-lacquered wooden frame resting on four straight, slightly tapered legs.It is topped with a light-colored marble tabletop decorated with pietra dura, combining marble with inlays of hard and semiprecious stones.The top is adorned with a geometric composition highlighted by fine green lines reminiscent of malachite, punctuated by diamond-shaped motifs and circular medallions. At the four corners are delicate fruit compositions--including clusters of grapes, pears, plums, and peaches--crafted in polychrome stone marquetry.The contrast between the simplicity of the black lacquered structure and the richness of the mineral-inspired decoration lends the piece an elegance characteristic of the 1970s, blending clean lines with inspiration from Italian
