Description

A superb Louis XVI-style barometer-thermometer made of carved and gilded wood, circa 1780-1790.The decoration, of great finesse, features a crowning trophy with a globe, a square, and a scroll, surrounded by laurel and olive branches. The lyre-shaped body is adorned with twisted cords and a bow of cascading ribbons. A basket of flowers on a fluted pedestal completes the composition at the base.Signed Antoine Appiani Condition: in good overall condition for its age. Gilding worn in places; minor chips and signs of wear visible in the photos (particularly in the lower section). Dial glass shows signs of wear. Mechanism's functionality not guaranteed; sold as is.
