Description

Painting, oil on canvas, "Coat of Arms" - Early 18th century. An interesting and antique heraldic or family coat of arms painted on canvas within an oval lacquered wooden frame, dating from a period between the late 17th and early 18th centuries, featuring a helmet with a crest and decorative mantling.A central shield, a helmet with a visor surmounted by a crest, and ornate side friezes (or borders) in red and gold/green. The work retains its original painted surface, showing evident craquelure, abrasions, color loss, and widespread wear.Historical context: Similar artifacts were produced in Italy as noble insignia, municipal coats of arms, or devotional/celebratory furnishings for historic palaces.The vibrant polychromy, the dark background, and the stylized design of the
