Description

DescriptionAn expressive impressionist maritime painting depicting a crowded industrial waterfront, with overlapping boat hulls, timber structures and a large vessel rising in the background. A small white rowing boat occupies the foreground, contrasting with the darker, rust-coloured forms behind it. Broad, visible brushstrokes describe the vessels and their reflections in a restrained palette of blue-grey, deep green, cream and earthy red. Vertical masts and angular framework give structure to the composition, while broken touches of pale paint suggest movement across the water. The reverse bears the inscription "Desguaces", suggesting a shipbreaking or marine salvage setting. Presented in a gold-toned frame with a black outer edge and a fabric-covered inner slip. Artist Unidentified.

Signed lower left and inscribed with a similar signature on the reverse. Artist Details The signature is highly stylised and cannot be transcribed reliably from the photographs. No firm attribution is proposed. Style / Movement Expressive figurative painting with impressionistic handling. Subject Industrial harbour, boats and shipbreaking. Artist Influence The loose brushwork, simplified vessels and muted colours show affinities with expressive European harbour painting. A specific artistic influence cannot be established. Signature and Reverse Inscription Signed lower left, with a corresponding signature on the reverse. The reverse title reads "Desguaces": "scrapping" or, in the context of the subject, "shipbreaking". Frame Moulded gold-toned frame with a black outer border and a fabric-covered inner slip. Visible wear, scratches and fine cracking to the frame finish. Our Opinion An interesting industrial maritime composition, distinguished by its layered vessels, angular structures and contrast between cool water and warm, rust-coloured hulls. The apparent shipbreaking subject gives it a particular documentary interest. Packing, Shipping and insurance from Barcelona calculated at checkout. UK, EU, USA & Canada: EUR180 For all other destinations email: hi@moderndecorative.com For item purchase and better viewing.
