Description

A refined pair of wrought gilt-iron chandeliers in rock crystal and amethyst by Maison Baguès dating from circa 1920, combining refined craftsmanship with an elegant, nature-inspired design.Executed in the style of the eighteenth century, these elegant six arm cage-form chandeliers feature a distinctive pagoda-shaped design, in which a rock crystal bird appears in flight above an illuminated flower basket, a signature motif of the Maison.Each chandelier features branche-like forms extending inward and outward, evoking the organic forms of trees and plants. Adorned with rock crystal and amethyst flowers and pendeloques carefully chosen for their harmonious shapes and colours, they create a delicate interplay of light and transparency, achieving a perfect harmony of form, colour and
