Description

Painter, watercolorist. Son of Joseph (José) Dierickx; nephew of Omer Dierickx. Studied at the Brussels Academy under Constant Montald, Jean Delville, and Emile Fabry (1920-1929). First exhibition at the Galerie Georges Giroux in Brussels in 1926.Founding member of the "Héracles" Group. Taught at the Ixelles School of Art beginning in 1932. Had a particular fondness for paintings of processions, festivals, and fairs, as well as landscapes and still lifes.In the press: "Raymond Dierickx introduces us to a mystical world. It is the world familiar from the images of previous centuries. In his major works, the colors rival those of enamel. His palette displays a poetic splendor. He captures the light and allows it to shine anew in his work."Works in the museums of Ixelles, Mons, and Reims.
