Description

A spectacular sculptural vase made of clear glass, the "Watteau" model, designed by the renowned Czech designer and architect Borek Sípek (1949-2016).This imposing creation stands out for its slender silhouette and remarkable glasswork, combining transparency, sinuous lines, and Baroque-inspired decorative elements.The upper section features a flared bowl surrounded by several asymmetrically arranged curved glass handles and volutes. It rests on a faceted sphere extending from a long central shaft with twisted and cut decoration, which is in turn supported by a wide conical base.This piece is characteristic of Borek Sípek's artistic vision, whose creations blend glassmaking expertise, decorative imagination, and a contemporary reinterpretation of classical forms.A true glass
