Description

A charming gilded bronze sculpture depicting a young child driving a rearing goat harnessed to a cart with two large openwork wheels. Inspired by a whimsical vision, this composition combines the animal's liveliness with the grace of the young driver, who holds the reins in a playful gesture.The sculptural work stands out for its rendering of the coat, the delicate modeling of the child, and the dynamic decoration of the chariot, whose curves extend into elegant volutes. The gilding highlights the reliefs and textural contrasts, from the rocky terrain to the smooth surfaces of the chariot.The piece rests on a rectangular stone pedestal in shades of cream, which enhances the bronze's luster.Signed "C. Kauba" on the pedestal.An Austrian sculptor born in Vienna, Carl Kauba (1865-1922) is associated
