Description

A large and elegant fireplace made of Néro Marquina and Carrara Statué marble, all of great finesse. It comes from one of the most important mansions in Brussels. Circa 1870. This mantelpiece features a deep, molded shelf resting on fluted, tapered, freestanding column,s topped with Carrara marble capitals. The wide frieze is delicately carved with a stylized floral motif, featuring a solid oval medallion at its center. Fireplace is still complet with it's original brass insert. Noteworthy: Both the freestanding columns ànd the marble paneling behind them, are crafted from a single block of marble, ensuring that the veins-patterns continue uninterrupted across the entire surface.
