Description

A very pretty teapot with interesting contrasts and symbolism. The brass body is engraved with three stylized medallions. One depicts Buddhist antiquities and symbols in a garden with cherry blossoms. Another features a bouquet of flowers and leaves. As for the third, on the back, it depicts a wooden dragon in the clouds. On the front is another medallion, made of red copper and adorned with a floral design. The top of the teapot features a swirling design depicting the famous duality of the Dragon and the Phoenix. It has a removable double handle and an elegantly shaped spout, edged with a copper band and featuring a partially openwork design with a red copper symbol. The brass lid is adorned with copper "peaches of longevity," whose twisted stems provide a comfortable grip.In very good overall
