Description

Henriot Manufactory.Polychrome earthenware, circa 1950. Small chip on thecrown, repaired.This earthenware piece is not signed bythe artist, but Mr. Maigné, in his book Terres Sacrées,on page 146, made a compelling comparison between a plaque createdby Auguste Courcoux and this statuary (see attached photo).Auguste Courcoux (1871 -1956):An architect and artist, Auguste Courcoux was born in Lannion into a family of builders. Descended from a line of architects, he carried on a family tradition deeply rooted in Brittany.His name is notably associated with several religious buildings in the Côtes-d'Armor department, including the Sainte-Anne Chapel in Trégastel and the Notre-Dame-de-la-Garde Chapel in Dahouët, Pléneuf-Val-André. He was also involved in the
