Description

A remarkable Venetian chandelier made of Murano glass, a masterpiece of exceptional craftsmanship created at the prestigious Pauly Venezia glassworks (1910-1920). This extraordinary piece features 12 downward-facing arms with Art Nouveau-style cups secured by three screws and adorned with a floral wreath, providing dramatic and highly elegant lighting from its 12 lights. The ribbed design in a refined crystal (transparent) color shines thanks to decorations featuring tall pastoral motifs with hanging blown glass drops and large gardenia flowers. At the top, a second finial enriches and enhances the design with a double row of scrolls featuring droplets. With impressive dimensions (H 160, diameter 160) and in good overall condition, it requires minor conservative
