Description

Welcome to La Trésorerie.A charming Art Nouveau-era bronze sculpture depicting a young girl wearing a bonnet and a short dress, with her arms behind her back. Her delicate pose and the meticulous modeling of her clothing give her an endearing presence.The bronze has a dark brown patina and rests on a honey-colored veined stone base, likely made of onyx marble. The warm tones of the base harmonize beautifully with the bronze's patina.The work dates from the 1900s-1920s. The signature reads Giuseppe Siccardi (1883-1956), an Italian sculptor and draftsman born in Albino, near Bergamo. He studied at the Accademia Carrara under Ponziano Loverini, then in Rome. His body of work includes intimate compositions, portraits, religious sculptures, and monuments.

Motherhood and family life are among his recurring themes.The base features pronounced veins that may resemble cracks but appear to be natural veining in the stone. However, it is not possible to state this with absolute certainty. Please examine the detailed photographs carefully.Dimensions and weight:Total height with base: 28 cm.Height of the bronze alone: 24 cm.Base: 13 × 13 cm.Total weight: 3,166 g.The photographs are an integral part of the description.
