Beautiful Hexagonal Stand, Wood: Carved Hongmu & Dream Stone, China, Late 19th Century

345 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Solid wood

Description

In the same style as another piece you'll find in my proantic gallery... A lovely hexagonal stand made of wood with a central stone. The legs and edges are carved with Greek fretwork and garlands of stylized leaves. Six legs joined by a hexagonal crossbar at the base, enhanced by small protective feet on the underside, which were added later. The central stone seems to evoke a dreamstone, where a landscape appears to take shape. Ideal for a round pot (see last photo). In good overall condition; one leg is slightly chipped at the base; two tiny chips--one in the wood and one in the stone; the top wobbles very slightly. A few minor scratches, nothing serious. Asian piece, most likely from China or Vietnam, dating from the late 19th century or very early 20th century, circa 1900. Dimensions:
