Description

Early 20th-century Portuguese earthenware crab plate from Caldas da RainhaImmerse yourself in the rich and colorful world of Portuguese naturalistic earthenware with this spectacular early 20th-century majolica wall plate from Caldas da Rainha.The slip-decorating technique involves applying water-based earthenware pastes and covering them with polychrome enamel, resulting in a highly realistic and natural finish. This wall plate depicts a beach with its flora and fauna, featuring a crab at its center. Typical of the Portuguese ceramic tradition, this piece pays homage to the legacy of Raphael Bordalo Pinheiro, a master of majolica inspired by Bernard Palissy. A true work of decorative art, it is hand-shaped and hand-glazed in the baroque style typical of Caldas da Rainha's
