Description

Thai gilded bronze Buddha statue.The statue is crafted in the Sukhothai style--or classical Thai style--and shows traces of gilding.It depicts a seated Buddha with a pointed ushnisha (a flame-shaped protrusion on the crown of the head), curly hair, a serene expression, and a traditional meditative posture known as the "touching the earth" gesture (bhumisparsha mudra).The work is made of cast metal or bronze in dark tones, marked by wear and an antique patina; traces of gold leaf or gilding are still visible on its surface.It follows the tradition of classical Thai Buddhist sculpture (such as that of the Sukhothai or Rattanakosin periods).Height: 35 cm, weight: 5 kg.
