Description

Lacquered, gilded, and polychrome Genoese wall display cabinet - 19th centuryElegant wall display cabinet of Genoese origin, dating from the late 19th century, from an ancient noble palace in Genoa.The display cabinet features a refined, contoured structure, richly decorated with floral motifs, volutes, and Rococo-style carvings, embellished with a delicate ivory-toned lacquer finish, gilded accents, and polychrome details.The central section, enclosed by a molded glass door, is designed for displaying small collectibles. On either side are graceful open shelves, also molded and decorated, which lend the piece a distinctive sense of movement and remarkable elegance.Of particular note is the painted decoration on the lower section, depicting a sleeping cherub immersed in a floral landscape,
