Description

Description: This large 19th-century oval mirror features a glass panel with a wide bevel, surrounded by a molded, gilded frame. A continuous frieze of embossed ovals follows the contour of the oval, set between two smooth moldings that lend depth to the frame. Light catches the tops of the ovals, while the darker recesses accentuate their design. In places, subtle reddish hues show through the gilding, particularly along the inner border.With its beautiful proportions, this mirror can single-handedly adorn the wall above a console table or a dresser. Its rounded silhouette softens the straight lines of a mantelpiece or an entryway cabinet. The wide bevel creates a second oval within the frame and plays with reflections depending on the angle from which the glass is
