Description

A Charles X-era embroidery kit, in the tradition of the tabletterie crafts of the Palais-Royal in Paris, circa 1825-1830.Presented in an oval-shaped gilded bronze case resting on lion's paws, this set is distinguished by its mother-of-pearl lid, finely engraved with a garland of flowers and foliage. The upper section, formed from a mother-of-pearl shell, is adorned with a radiating fan-shaped motif that particularly highlights the iridescent sheen. The entire piece is framed by a gilt-bronze border with floral decoration.Inside, the box reveals a mirror and a set of small sewing tools made of carved and engraved mother-of-pearl, adorned with vermeil mountings.It includes, notably, a pair of finely openwork scissors, a needle case topped with a small dog and adorned with the coat of arms of
