Description

This beautiful kilim comes from the Hakkari region in the far east of Turkey, a mountainous area where the Kurdish people have developed a remarkably rich textile tradition.This piece is practically signed! The choice of rich, saturated colors, the precision of the designs, the extremely even weave, and these magnificent braided mesh fringes are all characteristics that allow connoisseurs to identify antique pieces from this region.The composition is particularly interesting. Four large vertical bands feature a succession of geometric motifs that repeat and echo one another, without ever being perfectly identical. Two bands on an ivory background frame the other two--one in a deep indigo blue, the other in a luminous madder red. This alternation creates a striking graphic rhythm that is both powerful and perfectly balanced.And then there are the colors! The indigo blues are magnificent, almost unfathomable. They are paired with madder reds, shades of dusty pink, a few saffron accents, and ivory backgrounds that bring a great deal of light. The entire piece is made using plant-based dyes, whose intensity and harmony are remarkable.Finally, this kilim was woven in two separate panels, which were then joined and sewn together. The weave, wool-on-wool, is extremely fine and even. The mesh-style braided fringes, which are particularly well-preserved, also attest to the care taken in its creation.Hakkari Kilim - Eastern Anatolia, TurkeyWoven in two panels, wool-on-woolPlant-based dyesCirca 1900-1920Dimensions: 237 × 167 cmIn perfect conditionChoosing an antique rug or textile is often a matter of serendipity.
