Description

With its refined aesthetic and surface treatment, this piece is reminiscent of certain prestigious works attributed to the Princess Borghese Manufactory in Pratica di Mare, with which it shares a taste for fluid forms and exquisite finishes. Although it bears no mark that would allow for a formal attribution, the vase fits squarely within the tradition of high-quality Italian decorative ceramics that contributed to the fame of the ateliers in Sesto Fiorentino during the 1950s and 1960s.Its striking silhouette allows it to be used both as a flower vase and as a standalone decorative object.The condition is very good. There are only slight signs of wear on the gilding, consistent with the object's age. During our examination, no chips, cracks, or restorations were detected.
