Description

"Fil Z" stool designed by Atelier A, circa 1971.Made entirely of chrome-plated steel wire, it features a continuous structure forming a Z-shaped profile. The parallel metal rods form a rectangular seat, extend into a slanted central section, and then form the base that rests on the floor.Its openwork construction and geometric design are characteristic of the experimentation with metal furniture in the 1970s.Produced by: Atelier A, France, circa 1971.
