A pair of Rey-style bar stools with backs, designed by Bruno Rey and produced by Dietiker in Switzerland around 1975.Created in 1971, the Rey chair--originally designated Model 3300--has become one of the most iconic creations in Swiss design. Its innovation lies in a patented system for joining wood and metal without visible screws, resulting in a particularly sturdy construction suitable for heavy use.This tall version retains the characteristics of the original model: a slightly recessed circular seat, a low, curved backrest, and black-lacquered wooden legs. A chrome-plated metal ring serves as the footrest.Seat height: 80 cm Manufacturer: Dietiker, Switzerland, circa 1975.
