Description

This coat rack takes the pared-down silhouette of a stylised tree: a tubular shaft in glossy black lacquered metal, punctuated with chromed rings, unfurls at the top oblique branches forming pegs. At mid-height, a circular ring fitted with small branches constitutes an integrated umbrella stand, whose water is collected by a conical chromed metal cup set on the weighted circular base, itself underlined with a chromed moulding.This graphic and functional interpretation of the entrance-hall valet is characteristic of the modernist design of the 1970s, which revisited classic typologies -- here the "tree" coat rack dear to the Viennese tradition -- in a strictly geometric vocabulary combining black lacquer and chrome.Condition report: Good overall condition. Even glossy black lacquer, chrome slightly
