Description

Art Deco Sculpture "Femme alanguie" by Henri Fugère for Saint-Clément - Circa 1930An elegant and rare modernist sculpture from the Art Deco period titled "La femme alanguie." This piece is the result of a collaboration between the famous French sculptor Henri Fugère (1872-1944) and the prestigious Saint-Clément earthenware factory. The stylized female figure is depicted with an arched back and one arm raised. She rests on her original rectangular pedestal. This piece stands out for its superb anthracite-gray/midnight-blue glazed finish with a satin sheen. This shade, far rarer and more sought-after than the classic white crackled versions, powerfully highlights the work's geometry and Cubist lines. It blends beautifully into contemporary interiors or discerning Art
