deserves our full attention: the joints between the links show no visible traces of soldering. This exceptionally meticulous finish attests to the high quality of this piece's craftsmanship.Crafted from solid silver, this bracelet has been tested to confirm the nature of the metal. It bears neither a hallmark nor a signature and is therefore presented as a vintage piece in the Hermès style, without attribution to the house.Its rod clasp--also known as a T-clasp--paired with its circular ring, harmoniously completes this creation with its timeless design.A bracelet with character--at once powerful, elegant, and refined--that suits both men and women equally well.Its striking presence on the wrist makes it a truly distinguished piece of jewelry, capable of complementing both an elegant outfit and a more casual look.Dimensions and CharacteristicsPeriod: circa 1950Material: solid silver, hallmarkedModel: Anchor Chain, Hermès styleSignature: unsignedHallmark: noneTotal length: 20 cmLength of each link: 1.7 cmHeight of each link: 1.3 cmClasp: bar clasp with circular ringWorkmanship: very fine craftsmanship, with no visible welds on the linksNote: It is entirely possible to have this bracelet lengthened by a professional jeweler, particularly at the three small links located near the bar clasp.A timeless piece of jewelry, a wonderful gift ideaThis magnificent bracelet possesses all the charm and elegance of high-quality antique jewelry.Its iconic design, generous proportions, and exquisite craftsmanship make it a particularly appealing piece for lovers of vintage jewelry and creations inspired by the great jewelry houses.A beautiful gift for a loved one--or simply a treat to treat yourself to an exceptional piece of jewelry.Ladies and gentlemen, don't wait for a special occasion to treat yourself!A superb solid silver bracelet with an instantly recognizable style, whose elegance will endure for generations.Price: EUR980Free shipping throughout France courtesy of Galerie De Cicco.Carefully packaged and shipped with special attention.For any further
