Description

A superb original etching by Raoul Dufy titled "Venus with a Shell" (sometimes referred to as "Amphitrite" or "Nude with Shells"), created in 1925. This work features clean, fluid lines, emblematic of the artist's neoclassical period in the mid-1920s. This is an original, period print produced on a press for the avant-garde magazine "L'Art d'aujourd'hui" (Volume 3, Winter 1925, published by Albert Morancé). It bears the inscription engraved on the plate by the artist's own hand: "Printed for L'Art d'aujourd'hui", as well as the signature "Raoul Dufy" and the date "1925". The etching bed is perfectly defined and visible, attesting to an original print from the period.
