Description

Dimensions: 155 x 6 cm - H: 105 cm"Shanghai Sky" - Emulsion photograph, engraved acrylic plate, and LED lighting on canvas, by Christophe Demaître, 2009.Christophe Demaître frequently uses neon to challenge traditional urban photography. His approach often involves applying a photographic emulsion to industrial or raw materials such as wood, zinc, imperfect canvas, or metal, then incorporating neon elements or light structures to create striking contrasts.The artist captures the suffocating verticality of Asian metropolises. He incorporates striking words or ideograms, shaped directly into luminous glass tubes, which create a graphic rupture within the material.? (tian) means "sky" or "day."
