Description

Pair of Italian 19th Century Hand-carved and Gilded Wooden Wall Sconces An elegant pair of large baroque taste wall sconces crafted from finely carved wood and gilded with fine gold leaf. Featuring a rich motif of curls, volutes, and acanthus leaves in the Baroque style, they are ideal for enhancing classic interiors, period living rooms, or hallways. This pair of wall sconces, dating from the 19th century, is an excellent example of masterful carving. The supporting structure features a vertical design with rich relief decoration that includes shells, rocaille volutes, and floral motifs typical of the Baroque tradition. Each sconce is equipped with a curved, shaped arm that supports a light fixture with a carved bud. The gold leaf finish imparts a warm, enveloping luster, allowing the original patina and the red bolo base to show through in the most worn areas. On the back of the wooden structure, the original recesses for the wall-mounting bracket and the wiring channels are visible. Overall good condition. Note the normal signs of aging typical of the period, including slight wear on the original gilding with the underlying red bolo paint showing through, small cracks/chips on the carved wood near some reliefs (as visible in the detailed photos), and a period-appropriate repair on the arm scroll. Electrical wiring with a candle-effect lamp holder should be renewed.
