Description

This Mafrash Shahsavan, originally from Persia, is a beautiful example of the craftsmanship of the nomadic peoples of this region. The piece is distinguished by a particularly captivating composition, built around two large panels entirely embroidered with wool on a woven cotton backing. The work is of great finesse, with remarkable precision in the execution of the motifs.The two panels feature a succession of large diamonds, arranged in a perfectly controlled rhythm. Their outlines are accented with small angular motifs resembling hooks, while the interior features cross-shaped figures with curved ends. A border of small multicolored squares completes this highly structured composition.The color palette is particularly striking. Deep indigo blues complement brick reds and antique pinks,
