Large "ponte Rotto" Dish, Attributed To Lockett & Hulme, Staffordshire, Circa 1825

650 EUR

Signature : Lockett & Hulme

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Ceramic

Length : 47 cm

Width : 37 cm

Description

Large "Ponte Rotto" platter, attributed to Lockett & Hulme, Staffordshire, circa 1825Large ceramic serving platter with blue-and-white transfer-printed decoration. The central scene depicts the Ponte Rotto in Rome, the remains of an ancient bridge over the Tiber, set amid a landscape of architecture and vegetation.Intended for serving meat, this large platter features a recess designed to collect cooking juices. On the reverse, a blue cartouche framed by scrolls bears the inscription "Ponte Rotto."The attribution to Lockett & Hulme is based on a study published by the Transferware Collectors Club, which lists on page 55 two pieces with the same design under the name of this manufacturer and dates them to around 1825. Another Staffordshire meat dish, also decorated with the "Ponte Rotto" design and

Dealer

Antiquités Dubouchage
Generalist
Tel : 0614100067
Mobile : 0612094302

1 rue Rancher
Nice 06000

featuring a gravy well, is listed in the Leonard Auction catalog.Dimensions -- 47 × 37 cmCondition -- Very good condition