Description

Glazed ceramic (or stoneware) pitcher or jug, decorated with erotic scenes, signed by Paul Quéré* Atelier Le Minotaure, dating from the 1950s, 20th century. This pitcher has a baluster shape, topped by a slightly flared cylindrical neck featuring a small pinched spout. A thick-walled handle connects the top of the neck to the shoulder.On the body, a wide polychrome frieze depicts several figures in suggestive poses: nude men and women in erotic scenes, all surrounded by beautiful blooming flowers and branches of foliage. The base bears the signature "AQ" and "Le Minotaure." * Paul Quéré, Atelier Le Minotaure (1931-1993):A potter, painter, and poet, Paul Quéré created most of his work in St-Paul de Vence and later in Port-Grimaud. Together with his partner, Ariane Mathieu, they produced works under the name of the Le Minotaure AQ studio. Matte glazes and geometric designs adorn these high-quality pieces. In 1979, they returned to Brittany and continued to produce ceramics, though Paul Quéré focused more on painting, creating high-quality abstract works.This pitcher is in good condition and is of superb quality; it is very decorative. Please note: there are minor glazing imperfections and slight signs of wear from age; see photos.DimensionsMaximum diameter: 11 cmNeck diameter: 8.3 cmBase diameter: 10.3 cmHeight: 30.5 cm Reference: 500 1020All photos are available at:www.antiques-delaval.com
