architecture completes this poetic rural scene.The tapestry is distinguished by its remarkable ornamental border, richly decorated with floral motifs, scrollwork, foliage, and fantastical figures, which harmoniously frames the main scene.The color palette, dominated by deep blues, nuanced greens, and soft shades of beige and pink, reflects the refinement of Flemish craftsmanship of that era. The patina of age and the nuances of the wool lend the piece a particularly captivating authenticity and historical charm.A true testament to the craftsmanship of the great Flemish workshops of the Renaissance, this tapestry is an exceptional collector's piece, ideal for adding character, elegance, and historical depth to a classic or contemporary interior.Period: 16th centuryOrigin: Flanders, Audenarde WorkshopSubject: Diana Discovering the Sleeping EndymionDimensions: 257 cm wide × 187 cm highA distinctive antique work combining rich iconography, decorative finesse, and historical authenticity.
