Description

Oil painting on canvas, set within a finely carved wooden frame finished in gold leaf. The work depicts a delightful pastoral scene, populated by a group of cupids. In the background, a tranquil lake and the buildings of a city are visible, while in the foreground, the cupids prepare to loose their arrows toward a tree, upon which a heart hangs as their target. This painting is an authentic masterpiece, notable for its refined stylistic execution, a piece capable of lending a touch of elegance and antiquity to any setting. The work is attributable to the Emilian school of the Neoclassical period, dating to around the second half of the 18th century.
