Description

Elegant floral Aubusson tapestry, circa 1960A lovely Aubusson tapestry made around 1960, depicting a sumptuous bouquet of flowers composed of roses, peonies, and wildflowers in delicate shades of pink, red, white, and yellow.The flowers, in full bloom, are arranged in an elegant, powder-pink, faceted vase resting on a light-colored mantelpiece. The entire scene stands out against a background of deep shades of brown and burgundy, creating a particularly warm contrast that highlights the richness and freshness of the floral arrangement.The finesse of the woolwork, the nuanced rendering of the petals and foliage, and the harmony of the colors attest to the traditional craftsmanship of the Aubusson workshops, interpreted here in the decorative spirit of the mid-20th century.A tapestry full of
