Period : 19th century

Condition : Etat d'usage

Material : Mahogany

Width : 85

Height : 2/70

Description

A large, monumental dressing table in mahogany and flamed mahogany veneer, in the neoclassical style, resting on an imposing, architecturally designed base with a dynamic facade.The full-length mirror, which retains its three original antique silvered mirrors, is framed by two freestanding columns with gilded capitals, surmounted by a rich entablature and an elegant scalloped pediment adorned with four inlaid rosettes.Given its architecture, proportions, and the quality of its craftsmanship, this piece could have been produced in England during the Regency period or in a Northern European workshop in the Empire or Biedermeier styles.A ceremonial piece of furniture of exceptional proportions, remarkable for its elegance, authenticity, and grandeur.
