Description

This elegant bench perfectly embodies the timeless charm of the Louis XV style. Its graceful appearance is characterized by curved lines and cabriole-style legs, finely carved from gilded wood that evokes the refinement of period craftsmanship. The armrests, also curved, add a touch of comfort and sophistication. The seat is upholstered in a cross-stitch fabric featuring white and blue stripes, accented with delicately arranged red florets, lending a romantic and bucolic touch to the piece.Its compact size makes it a versatile piece: ideal as an occasional chair, it can also serve as an end table to add a touch of distinction to a living room.Period: Early 20th centuryVery good condition.Shipping available upon request in France and internationallyFor more photos, please visit our
