Description

Pair of pendants, small painted earthenware panels, Impressionist-style slip-painted works depicting farmyard animal scenes with roosters and hens from the famous Georges Delvaux factory; DX, the official signature of Delvaux (1834-1909), a renowned chemist and ceramist who took over the faience factory in 1889 and developed this relief painting technique. The frames are made of carved wood adorned with gilded motifs. On the back of the paintings, there is a handwritten inscription in blue reading "Montigny-sur-Loing." These are rare pieces of high quality, comparable to works of art
